The best grocery deliveries across the UK

As essentials fly off the shelves once again, we're here to keep your cupboards and wine rack full without any of the stress of visiting packed supermarkets. We work with local suppliers and producers delivering quality food across the UK, meaning you can beat the queues while continuing to support small businesses.

To help you find the best quality essentials, we've compiled a list of suppliers that can deliver to your door.

Please note that these providers' delivery statuses are changing regularly. Should you require further information, please do not hesitate to contact a lifestyle manager.

First Choice Produce

www.firstchoiceproduce.com

Delivering across the UK

This central London wholesaler's restaurant-quality produce is now available to the public. Fruit, vegetables, dairy and bakery products, as well as meat and fish, are available to purchase online. Boxes start from £22 and delivery is priced according to area. Expect your delivery to arrive within two to four days.

Natoora

www.natoora.com

Delivering across the UK

Expect seasonal fruit and vegetables, sustainable dairy produce and charcuterie, as well as exceptional store cupboard essentials delivered from Monday to Saturday, with a flat fee of £6 for delivery to London and Oxford, and £10 for the rest of the UK. You'll need to download the app to order. Please note that while all the items show pricing, you won't get a running total as you place your order. You can get an idea of the cost by working out how much you're ordering against the price per kilo.

Oddbox

www.oddbox.co.uk

Delivering across London and the southeast

Doing good while feeding the nation – Oddbox rescues fresh fruit and vegetables that don't meet supermarkets' stringent cosmetic and quantity requirements, and then delivers them straight to your door. The weekly or fortnightly boxes cost between £10.99 and £12.99, and include free delivery across London and the southeast.
